Objectives of the Internet site reportingcsr.org

ORSE (Study Center For Corporate Social Responsibility, <http://www.orse.org/>) has set up the web site www.reportingcsr.org (in both French and English) dedicated to offering educational support to companies with regard to their CSR (Corporate Social Responsibility).

The site reportingcsr.org is a «large CSR library» which:

- explains and compares the standards which provide a framework for the CSR reporting procedures in the various countries
- brings together the most recognised initiatives with regard to sustainable development
- provides links to sites showing sustainable development reports and comparative studies.

What the site contains

www.reportingcsr.org is a practical reference tool for the CSR domain. Free, simple and educational, it enables Internet users to browse according to their requirements.

There are different ways to access information on the portal to enable the user to arrive directly at the information they require:

- by profile: reportingcsr.org is designed to meet the requirements of several different groups of users (large companies, SMEs, institutions, NGOs, trades' unions, researchers, associations, etc.).
- by section:

International CSR Framework

This section describes the initiatives taken by various international organisations (United Nations, International Labour Organisation, Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development and the European Union).

Corporate Reporting

The corporate reporting tab offers five different subsections:

This allows the user to enter the site according to the geographical scope of the information sought (international, European or national), or according to the business sector or topic.

International

This section contains the laws, reference baselines and guidelines in force according to the various scopes, the most well-known being:

- the Global Reporting Initiative reference baseline
- the guidelines developed by the UNCTAD (United Nations Conference on Trade and Development)

European

This heading presents the actions initiated by the European Commission in the promotion and support of Corporate Social Responsibility as well as the European legal framework.

National Guidance

This heading includes the national legislation put in place by each country as well as the initiatives taken by the various states to support and promote CSR.

Specific Sector Guidance

reportingcsr.org also enables the user to explore the CSR processes for each business sector in greater depth. Entering the site via this heading allows the user to gain access directly to the information about their particular business area.

Themes

Under this heading, the user will find information on topics which interest them (economics, human rights, labour issues, governance, environment, consumers, society).

Consulting Report

Consulting reports = CSR address book

This tab gives the various French and international Internet sites which put company reports on line.

The user can read analyses and company reports in different business sectors and in other countries.

Reporting Stakes

The stakes differ according to whether you are an SME, large company or other organisation. In order for the reports to make sense, it is essential to take the business sector and topic into account and this section lists the various stakes associated with the CSR process for each.

The policy committee for the site

The policy committee for the site reportingcsr.org is made up of representatives of companies and their stakeholders: ministries, professional organisations, employee trades' unions, NGOs, companies, investors and asset managers, universities.

Its mission is to validate the contents of the site, to ensure it operates correctly and if necessary to instigate studies, in particular on the stakes for each business sector or by topic.
